

I am at the bottom of a ski slope and see a lady coming down sitting in a car chair. She is supposed to compete and is the favourite but she doesn't seem to take things seriously. I then see a group of people reproaching her until she finally decides to pull herself together and compete for real.

I am in a parking lot with my partner. It is dark outside and I realize that we have a little van and we are supposed to sleep inside it. There is a blanket covering the window in the back but the terrain is anyway too steep and we will have to move the van in another location down the road.

I am in a kitchen with other kids when the guy who owns the place comes in with another boy. As the latter runs to the other kids I manage to get hold of him. I am only kidding but he thinks I am doing it for real. I then realize I have only met him a few other times and decide to just let him go.

I am in a hotel room packing my clothes with the TV on. My parents are in the room next door and I am about to runaway from them when the program playing on the TV presents a band singing a nice song about love. I think it could be nice to let my parents hear it but it is now too late.

I am outside a villa watching a guy teaching some girls how to go on a skateboard. As one of the girls throws herself down a staircase I get a sled from the garage and start walking. I should go to a hill but end up at the sea side where there are only people surfing and I cannot use the sled.

I am running with another guy on a dirt road and realize we should have been three. One of us is then missing but I see two girls approaching by bike. I then ask the other guy if I should ask them to join us even though we are going to be four then but the guy prefers to just be the two of us.

I am with my high school friends and decide to steal a bus to visit the hills. We do so and start driving out into a forest but the guy who drives has to stop to pee. I then take the wheel and leave him behind but we reach an ancient city and I have to park outside it where we abandon the bus.

I am in a parliament and decide to go out but there are too many politicians. I then wait at the entrance and see that the cops are searching for spies. They identify one and I wait for them to leave because I don't have any ID on me to show them. Finally it gets all empty and I exit the building.

I am on a hill with two other guys. There is an abandoned bike but it is a racing bike and it is no good for the type of terrain where we are. I anyway have my mountain bike there and I just leave the racing bike to one of the guys. I then try to go up a hill but my gears are way too hard for it.

I am with a friend in front of a villa dressing like a priest. We then ring the doorbell and explain the owner that I want to make a painting for her. She lets us inside and writes a contract but then I ask her what kind of painting she would like and she tells me a lot of names of other artists.

I am in a park with my partner and come to a building where they are giving out condoms. She doesn't want to come in and I go alone. I take a seat in an armchair but another guy invites me to sit with him and two other girls. One of them is actually into me but the other one wants to leave.

I am walking out of a restaurant and meet a guy who used to play in the Italian football team. I then realize I used to play with him. He wants to go up to my native village but I just stay down by myself and check out the lake there. As I try to film it a lady steps in front of me and I just skip it.

I am in the Russian capital and just walk down a big dark road. A guy is in front of me and tells me how on a side road I can get drugs. I am only interested to go to a night club and ask another guy on a bike. He does not answer me and just picks up a wallet that someone else has lost.

I am walking with my partner and her relatives down a mountain road. I then realize that it is part of my art route and that I should now take a turn to the left. It is actually a steep shortcut and judging from how tired my partner's relatives are I decide to go straight even though it is boring.

I am in a forest with my partner and her brother when suddenly I remember that I was previously there with my bike. There is a kind of camping on our right side and I realize that it is very close to where we parked. I then start walking up a ridge on the left side to keep more out in the forest.

I am in the playground behind our house looking for my daughter. I then search inside the villa of a black man and find that she is playing there with a dog but instead of the black man there is my evil Dutch neighbour. He is quite okay with me there but then I see that there is also an evil girl.

I am walking in an industry area and reach a trailer. My lawyer is expecting me inside and I enter to sit down with him. An agent arrives to investigate the accident I had at work but he starts speaking in English although I tell him that it is not necessary. He starts writing but cannot spell.

I am looking through a catalogue by my Norwegian friend. There are photos of the villas he made with his office but then there is a picture of him wearing a bikini. I can see from his breast that he is a woman and as I look at the back of the cover I realize the other people in his studio are trans.

I am in a gas station and see that there are several buildings in the back. I enter one where the mother of one of my youngest son's classmates is. She has just divorced and has rented the whole place next to the motel where her husband is. There are enough rooms to let all the children play.

I am walking up the mountain to our village when I see that my partner's younger brother is driving up. He is way too slow and I decide to take a shortcut but end up in a cave. I want to go further up but there are a galvanized metal staircase taking me down and I just have to follow it.

I am with my oldest son having dinner with my uncle and her wife. The latter has started a new company and wants to have a calculator embedded on the website. I then search for one on my phone and show it to them. They are not satisfied and I realize that she wants something automated.

I am in the Canadian city where my father is and get in a small pizzeria. I actually order some pasta and realize that the owner is Italian. He is from the north and I ask him if he knows my father. They were good friends but I understand from his answer that they are no longer in contact.

I am with my family half way up a hill. We are actually under a highway and it doesn't seem so pleasant but I notice a path slowly going down to the sea. I want to film it but my youngest son starts walking on it and end up in the video. I then think of doing it again but it is no purpose.

I am hiking in the mountains with a man and his two sons. We are actually east of my native highland and I explain to them the various mountains but cannot identify the one further to the west. As we keep on moving I realize that it is part of the little Dolomites where our current house is.

I am in a restaurant when a woman sitting on the table in front of me starts a chant. It sounds very exotic but I realize that my phone is interfering with the speaker. I then move it to the other side of the table but there a man starts also to sing. It is musical with even a crane starting to move.

I am working in a ski resort bringing wood from one room to another. There are people getting changed and I decide not to work there anymore. I then walk outside but I still have to make it all the way downhill. I could have taken the lift but it is a long carpet made exclusively for snowboarders.

I am walking in a park with a girl when some strange combination of animals walk in front of us. I even spot a wolf and it starts staring at me. I then realize that he is dangerous but he gets on a sheep and bites its head off. I get my knife out to protect the girl and start to film the event.

I am in a bakery filled with young people. They are all from the south and I admit to them that I am from the north but would like to marry a girl from the south. I then make it to the city where it is also crowded but a girl stops me to look at my eyes. They are not blue but she kisses me.

I am laying on a hill with another guy when my stepfather arrives. He is on a horse and his hairs are straight up. I then think wonder what happened and see that he also has two of his grandsons on smaller horses. They have been crossing a path in the mountains but he was sleeping.

I am walking through a city stopping to film carpenters working in various sites. They are making a lot of dust and I hurry up to cross the street but a man with a big car is driving through it. I finally reach the other side and find two carpenters working the old way without using any cement.

I am in an old church with my architect uncle who has been dead for many years. We are holding a piece of chocolate and we throw on the ground before going out but then see that there is a secret passage going inside the church columns. It was designed by a famous Italian architect.

I am in my mountain apartment sleeping when I hear my neighbours making a lot of noise. I then try to yell at them but I have no voice. I go out and see there is already daylight and my nice neighbour is sitting with my oldest son. I serve them a tray of exotic fruits for each one of them.

I am in a restaurant about to leave when I see that my stepcousin is at a table with an old friend. I then go say hi to him and he stands up. I know he is supposed to get married and congratulate him but he tells me that his father has been very naughty and that he has tried to stop his marriage.

I am in a motel with my best friend and his wife. There is only one room available and the owner offers me to sleep with him. I am not sure if he has good intentions so I just decide to stay in the same room with my friend. There is only one bed I get to sleep on his side with him in the middle.

I am in our kitchen and see a white mouse on a closet next to the bathroom. I then take a chair to hit it but it falls down and makes it under a blanket. I try to kill it and even consider to step on it but then hear that it has a little bell around its neck and it could be a domestic animal.

I am in our Dutch house when I hear someone at the door. It is my mountain neighbours' son who just bought the house in front of ours. He is very sorry about it and I hug him and say that it is okay but then realize that he is all skin and bones and I could have easily defeated him in a fight.

I am cooking together with an architect friend in his cottage and I tell him how my oldest son is planning to get a loan from the bank to buy his own place. He cannot believe me and tells me that this is not the way it works. I then replay that we even called his bank and know all the details.

I am at home when my Australian neighbour tries to come in from the back. The door is locked and I go to get my keys but another neighbour I have never met is trying to come in from the front. I then go out with him and he shows me how someone has made graffiti inside his camper fridge.

I am in a museum sitting next to a girl and her boyfriend. We are in a narrow corridor listening to a presentation and she puts her leg against mine. I then find that she is quite mad but she even gets my hand and then puts her head against my shoulder. I then wonder about her boyfriend.

I am in a hotel room with my family and another family when the receptionist comes in with the bill. As the others check out I decide to pay it for everyone. It is a lot of money and I realize that it is because we are leaving that it is already late in the afternoon and we are paying for an extra day.

I am back in the factory where I used to work and go around it to see if I can find some pieces of wood I can use for my project. There is actually a guy driving the pitchfork but he doesn't recognize me. He anyway shows me the wood and just tells me no to get some old broken pallets.

I am in an art gallery with the owner showing me some very uninteresting works. As I think to myself that they lack colours he takes me outside to meet a group of people. My sister is also among them and I really want to leave. She leaves before me but we end up in the traffic together.

I am with another designer talking to a client about a map of a ski resort. He is showing us the old map that has all the tracks made in black. He wants us to now trace them in different colours but I have no idea how to first remove the old tracks. He then tells us he has the digital file to do so.

I am going up a mall with a very high escalator. Coming down from the opposite side is an Arab musician. He wants me to be part of his radio station and asks me what instruments I can play. I really don't want to do any collaborations and say I cannot play any instrument but my own voice.

I am walking home with my youngest son and get a message from the owner of the Italian restaurant where I got injured. He is waiting for me at my place and we go home to meet him. My son's grandfather is also there cooking pasta and I realize there are a lot of stoves burning with wood.

I am in the bathroom brushing my hair and find that the ones in the back are falling all down and there are big lice on them. I then take a spray to kill them but they keep alive and just turn the water on to drown them. As I keep on brushing my hair there is also a black spider that falls down.

I am in an Arab city but find no one around. It is noon but not too hot and at last I encounter one middle age man with blue eyes. I wonder how he can be so white but then see that there is the blue sea ahead of us and his descendants could have come from anywhere on the other side.

I am with a dead anthropologist looking at a map depicting the northern part of the south American continent. He spent some years there conducting an ethnography about a hunter-gatherer tribe. I then think they are spread around a big area but he shows me how they are just in one spot.

I am in a pub talking to a waiter about a costume getting her foot in a hole while she was sitting. I also want to cut a circle through the floor and put my foot inside but while I am standing. I then make it behind the bar to find the right place where to cut a circle on the plywood and do it.

I am brushing my teeth in front of the mirror and realize that my mouth is very wide like that of a dog. The teeth are very separated between each other and I can see that one in the back has an infection around it. I am not so much concerned on what people are going to say about my mouth.

I am getting out of the Italian restaurant where I used to work. My partner's older brother has left some cash but as he comes out I calculate that it is not enough. His wife then goes back inside to pay for the entire bill and I keep the door open for her putting a lock to prevent it from closing.

I am working in a vegetable garden and realize that the hunter who tried to block the building of my ark is also there. He actually says hi to me for the first time and shows me some exotic plants he is cultivating. He is even now married with a black woman and they have a child together.

I am watching a documentary about a Vietnamese amusement park where some children just died. They were coming down a big slide that was built in China out of different metal sheets. I then see the video of the moment before they died but it goes in a loop and doesn't show how it happened.

I am walking with my wife and kids in a city and try to think how we should feed them. We consider to go to a restaurant but it could be expensive. Luckily we see a food stand selling piadinas. I grab one and want to fill it with vegetables but I am not allowed and can only put ham inside.

I am in a small restaurant and go to the bathroom but one girl follows me. She is not so tall and she is anyway too young for me and I just avoid her. She actually comes straight to me and we kiss. I then wonder what it is going to happen and if I should consider her to be my girlfriend.

I am walking down a mountain with my family. I am actually filming but my youngest son makes faces like he was too tired. I also film myself making faces but then see that the terrain on our right is steep and he could fall down. Soon there is a road going down that way but we keep straight.

I am in the backseat of a small car with a guy driving down a big mountain. His girlfriend is sitting in the passenger seat and the guy tries to convince her to come and live with us. As she considers it we reach a ridge where we have to put towels on the side of the car so as not to scratch it.

I am inside an empty church and the priest tells me to check it out. I then walk up a staircase and realize that all the rooms on one side are also on the other. As I go in a door to the left I walk up to a corridor uniting both sides. I then walk on it and realize there are two symmetrical gyms.

I am walking down a hill with my some friends. The path is going in a zigzag and I realize that it is the one I have created for my sculpture park. There is a much nicer path below it and I don't know what to do with it. I then think to just let the wilderness take it over and make it disappear.

I am sitting in the electric car of my partner's brother. Her wife is going way too fast but we soon reach a station and just let the car on one side. On the other side is an ancient temple and I show it to her. I explain how it was later made much bigger and can actually see the new part behind it.

I am on top of a mountain with friends and just sit. There is actually a lot of ice and I slide all the way down. I then go in a little supermarket to get myself some cookies but I realize I have lost my wallet when I was sliding. I then go back to find it but realize that it must be buried in the snow.

I am at the dentist and realize that the doctor who has to fill up a cavity is my stepfather. It is time for our appointment and he confirms that but somehow just tells me to wait. I then remember that I already got two cavities filled and that the third one has never been diagnosed before.

I am working on a structure putting ropes from the top to the bottom. I then realize that I am blocking the entrance and just the rope going across it. As I tie that rope to the side I hear the two lawyers following my injury that the restaurant where I got hurt is in trouble because of another case.

I am in a town with one of the sons of my mountain neighbours. We just had a fight together because he bought the apartment next to mine without taking us in consideration. He is actually on the phone and I hear him saying that the time I am on holiday there he will try not to be around.

I am in a square listening to a black guy who wants to sell me something out of a catalogue. As I look into it I notice that there is also a black girl and she gives her breast to suck to other people. Everyone is reluctant but not my youngest son who goes for it even though it is very flaccid.

I am working on my computer when I get an email from the father of one of my dead friends. He suggests that we should have a phone call the following day. I find it a nice idea and then just look at some pictures I have showing me carrying my youngest son on my shoulders in an alley of trees.

I am walking at the bottom of my native highland when my father calls me on my phone. He tells me that it is walking high up and I decide to walk straight through the forest to meet him. As I start climbing I realize we can simply meet at his mother's place without making it too complicated.

I am reaching a station together with the lesbian mother of one of my daughter's classmates. I am actually carrying a lot of empty bottles and manage to put them in one bag. As we enter the station we start talking about how good Chinese people are at recycling but their military is now there.

I am with my youngest son getting in a restaurant. We actually want something to drink and the owner sits us in the back where there are no customers. We then wait for her to come back to get the order but she just ignores and we are only left with a mango ice-cream that is already there.

I am walking down a trail with my best friend but feel my boots very wet. I then ask him if he thinks I should remove them. He thinks so and I get them off together with my wet socks. I then notice our wives walking ahead on the asphalt and realize I will also need to walk barefoot on it.

I am in the barn of my dead mountain neighbour and pee out of the window. The son of another neighbour sees me but I don't care and just walk down and show my middle finger to his father. I then make it to my apartment and realize that it is sunny but the mountains are covered in mist.

I am in a room presenting my sculpture park to some politicians. One of them starts to object my idea but I immediately have a counter argument and everyone is very satisfied. They then ask my opinion with a baker who wants to expand his business and I say that he should diversify it.

I am in a supermarket and go to where they sell red meat and grab a package. I also open it but then wonder why I should always buy the same meat. It is biological and cut in thin slices but I always feed the children with it and they don't seem to like it. I cannot think of another solution.

I am in my mountain apartment and check the mail box. It is full of letters and I see that I might have gotten one from my father. I then put them all on the kitchen table and realize that they are all the memories my sister has of me and they have been torn including all the photos of us.

I am with my children in my youngest son's bedroom. They are taking too long to choose their clothes and I tell them to come out with me. We then play in our garden but I see a white dog approaching. It looks aggressive and I get my children to climb on the slide while I try to protect them.

I am in a small kitchen baking two big cookies. One of them shows my partner's older brother and I remove his silhouette and just put the negative in the oven. The other cookie shows his wife and I decide to keep her and remove all the surrounding before putting also that cookie in the oven.

I am planting some old fruit trees on a steep field. I manage the last one I realize that the branches are all dead already and also the other trees have died. As I think of planting new trees I see that on the other side of the hill is a beautiful lake with transparent water but there is also a fence.

I am walking inside a school and meet some musicians from my heavy metal band. I also have long hairs and a leather jacket and just play cool like them. I then go inside the cafeteria where the rest of our band is having breakfast and tell them how I was just meeting some famous rock stars.

I am in a room with my partner and an ugly middle age man who is going to take some tourists on a tour to my ark. I then suggest him that I should also be there but he is quite reluctant to tell me the place and the time of departure. I anyway write him down my phone in case he needs me.

I am in a parking lot downloading a fridge from a small car. There are other cars coming but they all see the fridge and drive the other way. One drives straight on the vegetable drawer. I then tell off the driver saying he has to look where he is going but he comes up to me ready to fight.

I am in a very technological building with my stepfather. We are on our way out and it is time to depart. My youngest son is with him and they are going to play tennis together. I also have a pot in my hands but cannot play because of my bad shoulder. I then go my way feeling broken hearted.

I am in a city looking for a hairdresser. They are all quite busy but I find a little one run by an Arab. There are no other customers and he welcomes me inside. He then starts combing my hairs but finds a lot of lice. I then worry that he doesn't want to keep me there anymore but he keeps up.

I am in a kitchen emptying a dishwasher with other artists. My stepfather is also there and I want to announce that I am going to start to work as a physiotherapist for him and I will not be an artist anymore. As I am about to do it he stops me and announces that he is only going to test me out.

I am in a French town and walk down to the sea. My spiritual friend is there and he tells me that he has caught the flu sleeping on the beach. As we see that there are some giant icebergs approaching we run to the place where he has left his luggage and see that it is surrounded by water.

I am in my uncle's new villa when I am suddenly left alone with my partner. We also go outside but the television is on showing a movie of a girl pretending to have sex. She makes very loud sounds and I make back inside to turn it off. I then just go with the vacuum cleaner to make more noise.

I am driving our van to a harbour where I am going to catch a ferry. I find a parking right in front of it but it is on the grass and end up in a little ditch. There is another camper next to mine and the guy invites me and my kids to play rugby with his kids. I then tell him about my bad shoulder.

I am in a garage getting a scooter out. My youngest son is already on one and we start driving down. He takes another route and I just wait for him behind another guy on a scooter. I then start swearing and the guy thinks I have something against him. Meantime my son reaches me on foot.

I am in my van when a group of old people comes in. They want to go to a restaurant and we manage to fit four in the back with other four facing them in the middle. Also in the front there are four but the driver can barely get started. I tell him to go anyway because it makes no difference.

I am by a lake with my youngest son. He wants to see men washing skyscrapers in a city behind us. I then take him up the road but we end up in deep puddle. The water is warm and I go back to swim with some Americans even though they get into a dark tunnel and I don't have any lights.

I am cross country skiing up a mountain with my stepfather. In front of me there are two girls going very slow. One of them thinks I look like her boyfriend. As my stepfather buys the tickets to check a fort she brings me her boyfriend. We have similar eyes but he is much shorter and chubbier.

I am in a courtyard ready to drive out with my van when one of my mountain neighbours asks me for my car battery. I actually have my tractor battery on and tell him that he should get the new battery I bought from the back of the van. We can then remove the tractor battery and he can have it.

I am in our Dutch house when I hear the postman coming. There are two letters for me about the insurance money I should get for my broken shoulder. I then open the first letter and see one amount but then open the other letter and see that the insurance company is canceling my benefits.

I am inside my ark with a woman and her son. They are actually from my native highland and want to take a photo of me. My hairs are too long so we just start talking. The boy tells me he has been several times in prison and I tell him about how my father exploded the truck of another guy.

I am in a park when I get a phone call from the human resource manager of the restaurant where I injured my shoulder. He wants to attend a meeting between me and two students I am supervising. I then tell him that they first need to write their thesis but he forces me to set an appointment.

I am in a library and walk up to a floor where there are girls looking into black and white catalogues. I go closer to one of them and I realize that these catalogues show the covers of old fashion magazines. I conclude that the girls must work for an advertising agency and seek inspiration.

I am watching a movie about a couple living up north. He is a soldier and is about to be sent south. She is desperate thinking they can no longer live together but in the end he is commissioned to build a castle and she gets to stay with him until it is finished and the poor king comes to see it.

I am in a supermarket searching for sourdough bread but only find a big white loaf. I take it and bring it to the cashier to pay for it but the guy at the cash desk tells me I forgot to write down how much it costs. I then tell him that they all cost the same and he just improvises an amount.

I am in a square playing a game with two teams. We have some plastic handles and I make one of them throw it to the other. On the latter team there is also the owner of the handles and she tells me that they are very fragile. I then have the first team carefully place the handles in the middle.

I am outside a restaurant getting ready to bike with my old friends. My bike is standing against a pole on the road and I realize that any car can come and take it. I then carry it down and talk to a friend who liked my former bike better but now it is broken and I cannot use it anymore.

I am in bedroom and wake up very late. I then go downstairs and find that I am in my mother's house. Her first son-in-law is going around in his underwear and I just make it to another room where there is my sister's daughter. I caress her hair and tell her that she is the only kind relative.