

I am in a garage when an old friend arrives with two black women. They are both very young and I am not sure who is his wife and who is his daughter. In the end I just greet the one I think it is his wife and I guess correctly. I then look at his face and see his satisfaction for having guess right.

I am in a terrace sunbathing with some friends. As I pull my head up I realize that my Dutch neighbour is sitting in front of his laptop on the floor just above us. I try not to look at him but my friends start making stupid comments about them. I then see that my neighbour's window is open.

I am in a hotel with my children and ask the receptionist for a room. I remember having made a reservation but she sees that we have been placed in different beds all around the hotel. I then beg her to put us together and also realize we were supposed to bring our own bed sheets and pillows.

I am in my study together with my anthropologist neighbour. He is there to suggests me some literature for the book I am writing about hunter-gatherers but I all the books I have read are no longer on the shelf. I then look for them everywhere and find them piled just above my computer.

I am in a parking lot with my children. We are about to take a walk but I realize that the car we have is very old and that the automatic lock might not work everywhere. I actually have a bag in the trunk and try to lock it manually. It is actually broken and I use the remote instead and it works.

I am in a disco with my best friend. There is a naked girl on the ground and she hugs my legs. Her boyfriend is also there but leaves and she asks me to make her excited. I just sit down with my friend but she sits on my lap while we watch a movie of a dickless man coming like a rooster.

I am driving an old car in a island on the other side of the earth. I actually read about the indigenous populations there and know that we are about to cross some mountains with a forest where a population live on antelopes. I want to take a look but the cars on each side are driving too fast.

I am walking with my partner in a park and start waving my hands up high. I then realize I can suddenly move my right shoulder after it has been frozen for many months. I am very glad about it and start rotating my arms and see that there is a new period coming up with also the spring.

I am in a cafe standing outside with the owner and looking at my former girlfriends with their husbands. I feel very ashamed of being there without my family but then realize that among them is also a friend who owns a restaurant. I then introduce him to the owner of the cafe and we chat.

I am walking down a tunnel to a train station but end up in a pub. I manage to go out from the emergency exit and walk another corridor but end up in a private apartment. Some futuristic staircase brings me down to a small gym. One of the guys training tells me to walk down a long corridor.

I am visiting a house for sale with my family. We first check out the bathroom but my youngest son turn one of the showers and get us wet. We then make it to the living room and find that we can look straight through the roof. My partner wants to buy it but I see that it needs to be renovated.

I am in our Dutch town with my Australian neighbour's wife. She tells me that they are looking at a new house to buy but they are too expensive. I then tell her of a street I saw with single houses and even a tree in front of each house. She has no idea where it is and I just walk her there.

I am overlooking a pond and realize that there are cliffs all around with wooden skulls. I then walk down and find myself in a cave some guys have built using carved stones. I congratulate them for their work and realize that they also managed to set up a studio with an internet connection.

I am in my study when I snake comes on the table I hit and move away. I then see it spinning in a circle and think that it is going to soon die but it starts crawling very fast towards me and I am not ready to do anything but to step on it with one of my slippers. I am still not sure it died.

I am reviewing the work of some art students. In turn they did a project inside a museum and also outside. One student in particular made a lot of stonewalls covering up the entire garden. I do not understand how he found the time and the resources to undertake such a temporary project.

I am inside a round theater and walk on the opposite side carrying a pair of moccasins. I don't know for whom they are but I try not to upset the other spectators. I then walk in the back of the first row but there are still some people in the second. I decide to sit and listen to a Christian song.

I am in the mountains walking with my dead neighbour's daughter. She is looking for a house together with her husband and I tell her of a town where they are giving them for free. We actually reach a river and see that they are covering it with stones. A kid pushes one making an avalanche.

I am driving with my partner to a lawyer but the office is in a one way street. I then tell my partner to quickly look on the phone where to turn. I am going straight but the phone says to turn left. I then stop a traffic light and drive a bit backward to change lane. One car is coming but I manage.

I am in front of a condominium where my daughter now lives with her Australian friend. I got a job in the States and there is a man next to me who is supposed to help me get them a visa to live with me there. I then call them to hear how long they want to stay but they are not interested.

I am on a golf field when a player asks me to stay in front of the hole where he is supposed to throw the ball. It is down a slope and I stand there but he throws the ball too far. I am not afraid he is going to hit me but just tell him to concentrate and he manages to get a ball straight in.

I am in an office and see that there is a laser machine. One of my Dutch neighbours is working there and I ask him if I can use it for my project. He says it is okay but tells me to follow him outside. I do so and we reach a cabinet with an old switch. I find it dangerous but he wants me to turn it.

I am in a narrow corridor with some artist friends. There are two soldiers who have to pass with a stretcher and I get my friends against the wall. The soldiers pass but there are more coming so that we find another spot at the beginning of the corridor where we can at least seat on the floor.

I am in an art gallery with an Italian artist friend talking to the curator. The latter is complaining that my friend is sending him too many notifications about the interviews he is getting for his new work. The curator only wants to receive notifications about my friend's children but he has none.

I am driving a scooter through my parents' city. There is a lot of traffic and I just park on a spot where my oldest son is fixing his car. I also get in the car with him but a gypsy with an expensive car wants to come in from the back. I promptly lock the doors and tell my son to leave very fast.

I am in the house of our racist neighbours across the street. I want to make it up with them and go upstairs to speak to the man. He is laying in bed and I try to tell him in Dutch that we are decent people and that my wife has got a new job. I mention the place but he thinks it is not possible.

I am in a hardware store checking some spray paints. I just pick a silver one and shake it so that try to see if I can still use it despite my broken shoulder. As I lift it I realize that I am suddenly able to move my arm again. The shaking must have been the way with which I healed it.

I am with an American friend checking a list of documentaries on a screen. He points at one showing a guy on a motorcycle and tells me that it is his friend. I really don't care and just scroll further but he tells me the name of his friend and I realize he is a filmmaker I really like as well.

I am sitting in the playground behind our house drawing. A Neo-Nazi teenager living on our street is also drawing. I then show him my drawing so that he does not feel too superior. I becomes quiet and I just tell him that he has to train more in order to become better but he is too lazy.

I am in a living room with my partner and other friends. She actually tells them that I was just invited to show at a big exhibition and a friend asks where exactly. I then check my phone to see which gallery it is but it turns out that I have only been invited to apply to a course at the academy.

I am watching the news with my partner and see that the Italian warship is being attacked by the Iranian. The latter shoots a lot of missiles but the Italian only has shooting guns to reply. I am concerned because the attack is taking place next to the Italian coast but my partner doesn't care.

I am in the apartment of the fascist leader. She is actually my girlfriend and just gives me a kiss and the sits in the kitchen to prepare a speech. I just go to bed but then my stepfather arrives with his parents. They are still alive and I also sit in the kitchen to look at them but they keep silent.

I am in an Italian restaurant and I realize that the owner was also my boss. There is only one cook and I help pour the pasta on plate. He then tells me that they cannot get Italian cooks anymore and that an Arab cook is now coming. We then start to call him bad names like in the movies.

I am walking in a library and ask the receptionist if they found my credit card. She gives it to me and I walk to a shelf where I see a nice camera on the floor. I then kick it under the shelf and just pretend that I am there looking at some books. As I look back down I see that there is also a bag.

I am in a small island looking at some guys training to jump in the water around it. It is not deep but as I keep on looking my bag falls in and I can no longer see it. I also jump in but it is very deep where I am and I try to talk to my partner on the phone while feeling the ground with my feet.

I am in a park when two girl throws a ball across the street. I then start to play volleyball with them but notice that an older woman is presenting the work of a local photographer. We took part to the same exhibition and I show the catalogue to the girls looking for where my work is listed.

I am watching a reportage about a famous influencer. She is in different videos doing silly things like following a dog on a beach or entering a ranch to visit a horse. Her clothes are very expensive and I wonder how she could have become so popular. I then realize I just have to change channel.

I am sitting on the sofa of our living room. My partner is standing and asks me what should we do. I actually think we should watch a Japanese erotic movie I found in our streaming channel but I am too ashamed to propose it to her. We then decide just go to bed and read our books.

I am in a cafe telling some friends how miserable the life of Chinese people is. As we are about to leave a woman sitting in another table asks me if I have lived abroad for many years. I then tell her about how we moved to a Canadian city with my family and she says she did the same.

I am in a field crossing a wooden fence and notice that there is a manger attached for it. There is a bit of millet inside and I realize that an old friend has placed it there thinking that I would have come on a horse. She must have changed the millet every day but not the day I have arrived.

I am on top of a mountain from where I can look at all the forts built on top of the surrounding mountains. I then run down the path and also end up in a kind of fort. It is renovated and in order to get out of it I have to make it through a small bathroom where a girl is just cleaning herself.

I am in a cafeteria and see that on the other end is one of my old girlfriends. She also notices me but then my family arrives and I just walk out without greeting her. There is actually a truck selling fruit and I find it too expensive but my partner wants to get some melons and wait in line.

I am walking in front of an open building storing famous paintings. I go inside pretending to be a famous artist and sit. Another artist shows me his work in a catalogue. It shows a storage of bombs and I realize my work is also in the same catalogue showing the arrows I made for my park.

I am in front of a lake looking at a man fishing on a boat. He suddenly pulls up a German shepherd and I am not sure whether it is dead or alive. He brings it to the shore and puts in on my lap. It is dead but he also has another German shepherd that is whiter and it starts growling at me.

I am walking in a city with a woman but she is angry with me because she thinks I opened a bag of sugar in her backpack. I then explain her that sugar damages my teeth and I would never open a package. Inside my backpack also another bag opened and that is because I put things on top.

I am in a cafeteria showing my project to a girl. She is very impressed and asks me and asks me if I have ever published an article about it. As I explain to her that I stay away from academia she puts her arm around me and presses it against her. I feel very ashamed and move it away.

I am walking down a metal staircase but the last step is very high and I have to jump down. I then walk down another staircase but one step is missing and I almost fall. As I reach the bottom I realize that I am in a Russian laboratory and I have to use a machine in order to open a gate.

I am at a conference and see my daughter alone in the reception. I then try to walk to her but end up in a queue to get to the buffet. I want to call my partner to see where she also went but my phone is too old and I don't have her number. I then use my new phone but she doesn't answer.

I am checking the email I have got from the Italian restaurant where I used to work. The schedule has been published with all the cooks. There is a picture of each one of them and as I scroll down I realize that the last one is from an Italian middle age man who also live in our Dutch village.

I am in my children school and see all the fathers in a circle. They are talking to each other but I just tell myself I don't speak their language and I have a good excuse not to interact. As I get closer I realize that some of them are actually speaking English and I no longer have a valid excuse.

I am in a garden helping the neighbours of my mountain village to clean a wooden table. They are still angry with me and the father pushes me on the side. I then start cleaning a plastic chair but the son also wants to do it. I then let him but he breaks a piece and I manage to fix it up.

I am with my partner walking down a hill. There are old houses on the left side and she wishes that one of them was for sale. I look carefully and see that they are all occupied. Only at the bottom of the hill there is a house that we could buy but it is right next to the road and has no garden.

I am walking with the members of an Italian right wing party. Their new leader is with them and I suddenly remember that their old leader has just died. They are not commemorating him and I start to praise him for his courage comparing their new leader to a coward without radical ideas.

I am watching the announcement about an art context. They offer an apartment with the studio and show the building where it is located. It is more like a ruin with only a wooden door but I know that upstairs is very well renovated. They even propose to sell it and I think of making an offer.

I am in a metro with an illustrator friend. She wants to help me with my new book and says that she can even improve the images I am including as part of it. There is actually another graphic designer helping me with it and I show her how the latter transformed a picture in a cartoon.

I am going up the spiral staircase of a building. All the way to the top there is a bookshelf with a lot of old films. On the side the door is open and I realize that my parents are inside getting ready to go to the wedding of one of her daughters. They discuss what suite to wear and ignore me.

I am in a valley with my stepsister and hear a wounded wolf. We then try to hurry up but there is a fallen tree blocking the road. As we try to climb over it I see that down the valley is a large metal pulley. I then realize that it used to prevent rocks from falling and it is not safe to go ahead.

I am in a big tower and almost reach the top floor. There is a restaurant there and the owner asks me if I want to eat. I say no to him and just make it all the way to the top but the restaurant there is full. I just wait to see if there is a table getting free because I don't want to eat downstairs.

I am on one end of a skating hall sitting with my twin sister. Her husband is among the skaters and I tell her how I like him despite our parents' criticism. I then hold her face and add that I have always liked her as well and it is sad how our parents have put us against one another.

I am biking with two Eastern European brothers. I don't find them fun and want to get away. One of them gets a flat tire so I just take advantage of the situation to leave. As I bike further down a road I see my daughter biking with her friends in the opposite direction and I just let her go.

I am working on my computer and find the biography of black singer with a pockmarked face. A photo shows him during his wedding day and it actually turns into a video. He comes forward to where the priest preaches and start offending everyone in the room claiming how bad society is.

I am in a field thinking where to reposition my ark. The architect who did the paperwork is also there and I realize it is going to take too much time. I then walk away and see an old friend having a picnic. I immediately call him a bad word and I realize that every time I see him I call him that.

I am in a restaurant drawing on a yellow napkin the map of the Mediterranean sea. An black girl is looking and tells her father about my beautiful illustration. I then realize that I have drawn a lot of black people in one of the islands and their colour matches with the yellow background.

I am carrying a pile of empty food boxes to an harbour. I then make a phone call to a girl to ask if I can drop them at her place. She thinks I am only interested in her and tells me never to contact her anymore. I then keep on walking with the boxes not to do what I should do with them.

I am crossing a street but realize that on the other side is a guard. He tells me that he has to be the one saying when I can cross. Ahead of me is another street with a younger guard but I am quite fed up to listen to them and just declare that they have no authority to tell me when to cross.

I am at a meeting with the people of the Italian municipality that is allowing me to build my art route. They seem very satisfied and we are about to wrap up when it comes to my head that I want to explain them the meaning of the park. I then tell them about my idea of a new Mesolithic.

I am on a hill checking how to walk forward. I see a path to the right side and try to find a safe way to reach it. I then walk down a field to the left but the owner tells me to keep to the right. As I find the way I go back up to tell some friends how to also reach the path but they are having a party.

I am walking with my partner and our children down a steep mountain road. We need to find a path that keeps straight but only find a staircase. We then walk up and find ourselves stuck in a metro station. I then ask a man working there which path we should take when we go back down.

I am sitting at my desk in the middle of the night and think of masturbating. I then turn off the light and start to touch myself. I really enjoy it but all of a sudden I realize that my wife is still sleeping in the bed next to me. She actually turns on the big light but I have nothing to feel ashamed of.

I am in a hostel ready to go for an excursion but realize that I have left my phone in the cafeteria to recharge. I then walk there and see that it is under the table where a Dutch musician friend is eating. He is a real pain and I just try to get the phone without him seeing me and wanting to talk.

I am in a stadium with a group of young athletes. We are sitting around a long table eating some rice and our coach asks us whether we want to be part of the salmon team or the shrimp team. Everyone wants salmon but a very composed guy who is actually eating some nice bis shrimps.

I am in a car with my oldest son and have to fetch a bus to the airport. I can see it approaching on my phone and tell my son to pullover. The bus arrives and I give the driver a bill expecting some coins in exchange but he also takes another bill from my wallet. I then realize it is expensive.

I am in my native highland with the uncle who lives there. As I tell him that I want to meet my father a car arrives with one of his friends. He is actually playing the guitar with a beautiful woman on his side. I then decide not to write to my father and just get my camera out to film the man.

I am walking through an old village with my partner when she points out a building. She finds it very interesting but I like the one next to it. There is even a church built in the back but I realize that the family who built it must have run out of money because they didn't manage to finish it.

I am at a conference listening to my Polish friend presenting his work. He is able to make a plant spin using some transistors. There are also robotic mice spinning around it but at some point some actual mice steps in and completely disrupt his performance. I no longer find him interesting.

I am in a park when I get a phone call from a former employer. It is getting dark and I don't want to answer him. As I reach the end of a park a woman arrives by car. She is actually delivering a package of food for me and my partner but there are two bottles of soda which we don't like them.

I am walking in my parents' city and find a magazine on the ground. It is about the American army and one photo shows a black female soldier leading a tank. She is actually there with other soldiers and asks me what I am doing. I then explain to her that I collect trash to make art collages.

I am at a garage looking at the engine of the little car my girlfriend just bought. The mechanic tells me to help him out and while he keeps the hood open he instructs me how to remove certain parts. He then gets me to hammer a whole component away but I break it in small pieces.

I am in the kitchen of a hostel and meet an Egyptian guy who is about to eat a chicken. He tells me that he has been marinating it the whole day but sees that I did not do the same with my chicken. I only eat with avocados and he wants the peals so that he can build a grave for himself.

I am watching on television a program showing three actors reuniting after many years. They are singing a famous tune from one of their movies but one of the actor forgets the words. He is actually too old and has now dementia despite trying to show that he looks young wit rainbow clothes.

I am in the train station of an American village. Local artists have turned it into a workshop and I check how they paint circles in the faces of people in preparation for their wooden sculptures. I also paint the face of one of them on the wooden table but when I stand up I see it is distorted.

I am crossing a street and see an old relative of mine. He is actually running as mayor of our native village and I hug him. He then shows me to a room where one of our relatives is being hospitalized. She is actually my father's youngest sister and it is likely she will never recover anymore.

I am in a hotel with many rooms. I have actually forgotten my bag in one of them but I only remember it is an odd number. I then digit the code and enter the first one but there is already a young couple inside. My partner also comes to help me and we go out to search for the other room.

I am watching some skaters getting ready to perform. Some of them are stealing the chips others are holding on their hands but soon the show begins and a sheet is thrown over them. As it is lifted a throne appears with a skeleton sitting on it and the skaters that begins to perform for it.

I am with the Italian prime minister waiting to board a busy bus. There are some students with us and the minister asks if they are fascists like her. I can see from their hat that they are actually left wing. The minister doesn't get too upset about it and we make fun of their long hair.

I am on a dirt road getting some stones on a wheelbarrow. I then take them down to a field where there is a hole that has to be filled. My mountain neighbour arrives and I explain to him that I am doing him a favour so that he can drive his tractor to a garage built in a cave next to my field.

I am in a racing track watching a guy paddling a special bike. After two laps the battery gets charged and he starts going very fast. My stepsister is also biking very fast but her bike is not loading. She goes far more than a two laps but still the electric engine is not responding and seems dead.

I am sitting in a cafeteria with a mountain neighbour. He is a doctor and tells a patient how meaningless is to do a certain kind of diagnosis. I want to change the conversation and just show her a cube I have with pictures attached on each side. One of them is about me and my neighbour.

I am walking with a poor boy on a street. I am actually quite rich and want to buy silver from vendor. I assume it is very cheap but I ask the price for a little silver box and it turns out to be very expensive. It is also very thin but I want to buy it anyway as a present for the poor boy.

I am watching a documentary about a man who is in a small room mending t-shirt. He is getting interviewed about a scandal that just occurred after he realized that many of these t-shirts were the jerseys of famous football players. Their teams were trying to outsource him for cheap labour.

I am in the hallway of a big train station and see that my Polish friend is also there with a friend. I would really like to say hit to him but I also have a friend with me and I promised to take him to the bathroom. We then just walk very fast in front of my Polish friend trying not to be seen.

I am in an apartment with kids playing. Their grandmother is watching outside of the window and I realize that we are actually engaged. I cannot explain how that happened since she is very old but her breast is firm and I hug her from behind and tell her to come with me in the bathroom.

I am in a small car with an Arab young woman driving. She is actually going through the fields but doesn't know that there is a ditch approaching. I warn her but she doesn't care and drives towards it. I then think we are doomed but the car manages to go right through it without crashing.

I am on top of a mountain cleaning up a railroad when I hear my father speaking the local language. I then follow him down to the village looking at his beautiful blue eyes and we reach an art deco cafe. As we enter he shows me how people have to pay to read only a section of a magazine.

I am an abandoned gas station at night and see that my mountain neighbours' children are removing some white obstacles from the road. I then realize that they want to make up with us and wish to spend time with them but I need to find a place where to hammer a copper pot I have with me.

I am in a small bay with my children but notice that the tide is getting higher and we must move away as fast as possible. We then go up and try to find a spot where to sit but there is a lady with a big dog. It doesn't seem dangerous but she lets it run loose and it keeps on bothering us.

I am walking in a boulevard with a some pizzas I made. My mountain neighbour drives by with his tractor and asks for a slice. I give it to him but he seems to want more. I then give him two extra and realize that they cannot taste so good. I put the wrong type of cheese and it is getting hard.

I am a harbour at night hanging from the tip of an old boat. Two persons are there to help me get on dock but I make an effort and manage to push myself up on the boat. I then jump on the dock but the people who were trying to help me take shelter and I notice two others trying to kill me.

I am in a campsite talking to a Spanish girl who is about to leave for another campsite. She does not want me to know where it is. I then just let her go and see with my partner where we should go. She shows me a hostel she found on her phone. It looks decent from the outside but not inside.

I am in a room with my twin sister. She is actually laying in bed and looks very young. I then kneel next to her and understand that she is not going to live much longer. I then tell her that for the time being we should promise each other to keep on friendly terms like brothers and sisters.

I am walking with my oldest son the road to our village and spot some white doves on the slope to our left. They are hiding in a bush and I make noise to scare them. They actually don't move and as we approach them we realize they are the white chickens my son's mother is shepherding.